

Stunt Photographer's Job Is Hard To Swallow

LOS ANGELES (Wireless Flash) — One unique photographer often shoots things that are hard to swallow.

Photojournalist Jeffery Werner has just put together Incredible Stunts: The Chaos, Crashes, and Courage of the World's Wildest Stuntmen and Daredevils (Incredible Features, Inc.), a coffee table photo book of professional movie stuntmen and daredevils in action.

Werner has been on many wild shoots throughout his career, including one with a daredevil who's specialty was picking up razor blades with his eyeball.

He's also photographed a guy who's stunt was swallowing a power drill. He recalls, "I took pictures of him during the stunt and pictures of him afterwards in the hospital, getting X-rays."

Werner has a strong stomach for weird photography and hiding behind his camera helps him witness things without losing his lunch.

He once shot a "barf artist" who's talent was hurling on command, who was also an ordained minister and performed mock wedding ceremonies where he'd throw up on the couples at the end.

Werner says, "If it weren't for my camera in front of my face, I could've never watched that!"

Here's a book that needs a disclaimer to the reader and it should read:

Warning! Just looking at this book could inspire greatness...
and a few broken bones, too!

For three decades, photographer Jeffery R. Werner has traveled across the nation – and 60 countries – in pursuit of photographing daredevils who put themselves in harm's way in every way imaginable – by motorcycle, gun, hot-air balloon, airplane, car, train, helicopter, boat, ski, and even a washing machine. Now a collection of his best work, the kind that's been published by People, Time, Newsweek, Life, National Enquirer and The Smithsonian, has been brought together in Incredible Stunts! Jeffery, the only still photographer inducted into the Stuntworld Hall of Fame, captures with every photo the unlimited depth of the adventure-seeking spirit that rests in the heart of every daredevil.

Jeffery dedicates his book to Evel Knievel, "the world's greatest daredevil," and Dar Robinson, "the world's greatest stunt man." Incredible Stunts! features large, colorful photographs of death-cheaters bucking the odds, seemingly capturing the impossible and the unthinkable.

Jeffery, who literally went out on a limb, to snap his critically-acclaimed photographs, sometimes even risking his life, offers double-page spreads in his oversized coffee table book, as well as sequences of stunts that appear to leap off the page. Fans of TV shows past and present, from That's Incredible! to Fear Factor, as well as stunt fans and adventure photography buffs are sure to appreciate Incredible Stunts
